Dr. Martin Luther King was a strong and inspiring leader that encouraged people to believe that black people should be treated equally. He had a dream that one day all people would live together peacefully and equally, no matter what skin color they have. He believed in love not hate, peace not war. His powerful speeches, marches and peaceful protests encouraged people of all races, gender, and religions to join him to make his dream come true.

Many changes have occurred making people more equal but we have a long way to go. My dream is that one day my uncle and his husband will be able to hold hands and show their love in public without fear or judgement. My hope is that women will be treated equally to men, and blacks, Latinos, and all other races can live without fear.

Dr. King is important to me because he set an example of how we should treat people with respect and kindness. Even though I'm still young I can show people how to love others like he did. I want to keep his message alive and teach people to celebrate and respect each other's differences.
