

Have you ever thought about what life would be like without Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.? Or how some dreams wouldn't be possible? Think about a dream for yourself. I already know mine. My biggest dream is to be the first biracial woman president. I would not be able to accomplish that without Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. I especially wouldn't be able to come close to being a president because of the color of my skin, not my character. I wouldn't be able to shake hands with anyone. I wouldn't even be able to vote because of my skin color. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. changed history for all of us.

Now I will be able to vote when I am older and get to run for president too. Now I don't have to worry about being affected when I run for president because of my skin color. I will be able to shake hands with anyone I want without having to worry. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. would support me all the way through and he would most likely think that I am doing the right thing. That is why my dream wouldn't be possible without Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. stepping up to make a difference.
