I know that Dr. King's dream was to make segregation illegal. He believed that everyone should have equal rights no matter what you look like. He did all of this for us; even though he knew it was dangerous and people who did not agree with his ideas were trying to kill him. Dr. King is important to me because my parents would not have been allowed to get married, and I would not be alive if he didn't have his dream.

I try to be like Dr. King by standing up for my brother and others like him that have learning or health problems. Someday, I hope to be a teacher or a doctor and help people achieve their dreams. First, I will need to get an education to do these jobs, so I want to go to an Ivy league College. Dr. King's work makes all my dreams possible. That is why I am grateful for Dr. King.
